WILLIAM BOYCE was born in the year 1710, in the City of London, at Joyner's Hall, of which his father, a cabinet maker, was housekeeper. He was educated at St. Paul's School, and began his musical career as a chorister in the Metropolitan Cathedral, under Charles King, Mus. Bac., then Master of the Children and Almoner of St. Paul's. Upon the breaking of his voice, and consequent dismissal from the Choir, he was taken as an apprentice by Dr. Maurice Greene, then Organist of St. Paul's, and by him taught the principles of music and the practice of Choral Service. At the expiration of his articles, he became Organist of Oxford Chapel, in Vere Street, and commenced his career as a teacher of music. Anxious to extend the theoretical knowledge which he had acquired under Dr. Greene, he became a constant attendant at the Scientific Lectures of the learned Dr. Pepusch, studying with deep attention the philosophical principles of music, and at the same time becoming intimately acquainted with the works of the early Flemish and Italian Composers, as well as those of our own country. In the year 1736, he quitted his situation at Oxford Chapel, on being chosen organist of St. Michael, Cornhill, and upon the decease of John Weldon, in the same year, he was appointed one of the Composers to His Majesty's Chapel Royal. In the year 1740, upon the erection of an organ in the church of the united parishes of All Hallows the Great and the Less, in one of which he was born, he was requested by the parishioners to become their organist, which employment, notwithstanding his various other engagements, he accepted.

In the year 1749, at the installation of the Duke of Newcastle as Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, Boyce set to music an Ode written for the occasion by Mason, the poet, which was publicly performed; and likewise produced an Anthem, suited to the ceremony, which was sung at St. Mary's Church on Commencement Sunday. As an acknowledgment of the merit of these compositions, the University conferred upon him, unsolicited, the degree of Doctor in Music.

On the death of Dr. Greene in 1755, Dr. Boyce was nominated to the office of Master of His Majesty's band of musicians, by the Duke of Grafton, then Lord Chamberlain of the household, but was not sworn in till 1757, when the Duke of Bedford held that station; though he performed the functions of the office from the time of his nomination. In 1758, he was appointed one of the organists of the Chapel Royal, in the room of John Travers, then lately deceased, when he resigned his two places in the city.

As he advanced in years he became afflicted with the gout, which increasing in the frequency and violence of its attacks, interrupted his pursuits, and at length put a period to his life on the 7th of February 1779. He was interred at St. Paul's Cathedral, and his obsequies were performed with every mark of affection and respect; many people of rank and distinction attended, together with almost every eminent musician in London.

For further information respecting this gifted musician, see the valuable life prefixed to the second edition of his noble Collection of "Cathedral Music."

HENRY HALL received his musical education contemporary with Henry Purcell, under Dr. Blow; and afterwards became organist of the Cathedral at Hereford. "His compositions," says Dr. Arnold, "have somewhat of a pleasing melancholy cast, and bear strong marks of genius and sensibility." He was ordained deacon in the year 1696, and died about 1700.

On the death of Dr. Greene in 1755, Dr. Boyce was nominated to the office of Master of His Majesty's band of musicians, by the Duke of Grafton, then Lord Chamberlain of the household, but was not sworn in till 1757, when the Duke of Bedford held that station; though he performed the functions of the office from the time of his nomination. HENRY HALL received his musical education contemporary with Henry Purcell, under Dr. Blow; and afterwards became organist of the Cathedral at Hereford. "His compositions," says Dr. Arnold, "have somewhat of a pleasing melancholy cast, and bear strong marks of genius and sensibility." He was ordained deacon in the year 1696, and died about 1700.

WILLIAM HINE was born at Brightwell, Oxfordshire, in the year 1687, and early in life obtained a chorister-ship in St. Mary Magdalen College, Oxford. He is supposed to have derived the ground-work of his musical education under Mr. Hyte, organist and master of the children of the said College. Early in the eighteenth century he visited London, and became a pupil of Jeremiah Clark, "from whom," says Dr. Arnold, "the pupil imbibed the master's excellence, and became distinguished for his elegant manner of playing the Church Service." In the year 1711, he succeeded Stephen Jefferies, as organist of the Cathedral of Gloucester, and shortly afterwards he married Alicia, daughter of Ruddell, the famous bell-founder of the same city. After having been organist of the Cathedral many years, he died, to the regret of all that knew him, on the 28th of August 1730, and lies buried in the cloister adjoining the Cathedral, where a handsome monument was erected to his memory, with the following inscription :

JAMES NARES was born at Stanwell, in Middlesex, in the year 1715. The early part of his musical education he received in the Chapel Royal, under Bernard Gates, then master of the choristers, after which he finished his studies under the celebrated Dr. Pepusch.

For some years he officiated as deputy to Mr. Pigott, of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, and on the resignation of Mr. Salisbury, in the year 1734, was chosen organist of the Cathedral at York. He continued in this situation till the 13th January 1756, when he succeeded Dr. Greene as organist and composer to His Majesty's Chapel Royal; and about the same time he was honoured by the University of Cambridge with the degree of Doctor of Music.

On the resignation of Mr. Gates, in October 1757, Dr. Nares was appointed master of the choristers of the Chapel Royal, the establishment of which for educating and teaching the ten boys, being the same as at the time of the restoration. On the death of Peter Giller, His Majesty was pleased to annex the salary of the Violist's place to that of the master of the children, but on the revival of that place in the person of Mr. Crosdill in the year 1777, the place of Lutenist was given to Dr. Nares by way of compensation, and ordered to be added to the salary of the master of the choristers for ever.

Dr. Nares resigned the mastership of the choristers, in favour of his pupil Dr. Edward Ayrton, on the 1st of July 1780, and died the 10th of February 1783. He was buried in the vault under the middle aisle of St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, where a small but neat tablet is erected to his memory. He was succeeded in his places of organist and composer to His Majesty, by Dr. Arnold.

and to the Son and to the Ho - ly Ghost As it was in the be - ginning is now and to the Son and to the Ho - ly Ghost As it

The first system of the musical score. It consists of five vocal staves (Soprano, Alto, Tenor 1, Tenor 2, Bass) and a grand piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "and to the Son and to the Ho - ly Ghost As it", "and to the Son and to the Ho - ly Ghost As it was in the be - ginning is now", "and to the Son and to the Ho - ly Ghost As it was in the be - ginning is now", and "and to the Son and to the Ho - ly Ghost As it". The music is in a key with one flat (B-flat) and a common time signature.

and e - ver shall be world with - out was in the be - gin - ning is now and e - ver shall be world with - out

The second system of the musical score. It continues the vocal and piano parts. The lyrics are: "was in the be - gin - ning is . . . now and e - ver shall . . . be world with - out", "and e - ver shall . . . be world with - out", "and e - ver shall be world with - out", and "was in the be - gin - ning is now and e - ver shall be world with - out". The musical notation includes various note values and rests, with the piano part providing harmonic support.

O GOD THOU HAST CAST US OUT,

Large Anthem,

FOR THE FAST DAY, DEC. 18TH 1745.

Psalm, LX,

Maurice Greene, Mus. Doc.

Musical score for the Anthem "O God thou hast cast us out," for the Fast Day, Dec. 18th 1745. The score is written for Alto 1st, Alto 2nd, Tenor, Bass, and Organ.

The score is divided into two systems. The first system shows the vocal parts (Alto 1st, Alto 2nd, Tenor, Bass) and the Organ. The second system shows the vocal parts and the Organ, with the lyrics "O God thou hast cast us out and" written below the vocal staves.

The key signature is B-flat major (two flats). The time signature is common time (C). The organ part is written in treble and bass clefs.

The lyrics are: O God thou hast cast us out and
